

Frank Hampton

Tenor

Tenor FRANK HAMPTON has a wide and varied career balancing both the arts and sciences. With musical training at the Juilliard School and vocal training at Westminster Choir College, Frank currently holds a position as a Professor of Civil Engineering at Villanova University where he teaches numerous undergraduate and graduate courses in structural mechanics, construction materials, and advanced computer-based analyses of structures. Frank is also director of STEM outreach programming in the College of Engineering.

Frank's music career is equally as varied including working as a solo singer, a professional chorister, an accompanist and vocal coach, and as a conductor. With additional training as an apprentice artist at Des Moines Metro Opera (where he also sang as a main-stage artist) and OperaWorks, Los Angeles, Frank has sung extensively in the Philadelphia area as a core member of the Philadelphia Singers, the chorus of Opera Philadelphia, and an appearance at the Festival dei Due Mondi, Spoleto, Italy. Dr. Hampton held a one-year appointment as an apprentice artist with the New Jersey Opera Theater, appearing in multiple outreach appearances of the Magic Flute. Other opera appearances include appearances with Concert Opera New Jersey, Concert Opera Philadelphia, and the The Savoy Company. As a solo singer, Frank has appeared with the The Philadelphia Orchestra, the Philadelphia Singers and The Chamber Orchestra of Philadelphia, The Des Moines Metro Opera Orchestra, the Bucks County Choral Society, the Ocean City Pops Orchestra, and the Jersey Shore Pops.
