

Jade Blocker

Soprano

JADE TIARA BLOCKER found her love of music at age six in the Children's Choir at Christ Church Manhasset, New York. There, she grew through music, love and laughter. At fourteen, she joined the adult choir where she developed her musicianship. Jade's natural next step was Westminster Choir College. Here is where she bloomed. Her heart burst open in the form of poetry, which can be found at poemsofmyeipphany.wordpress.com.

Her artistry and soul were part of the atmosphere created by Symphonic Choir, Jubilee Singer and Westminster Choir. Currently, Jade sings with the Philadelphia Symphonic Choir, Glassbrook Vocal Ensemble and at St. Luke & the Epiphany Episcopal Church in Center City Philadelphia. Jade is honored and grateful to be singing one of her favorite masses with the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs.
