

Frances Fowler Slade

Conductor

FRANCES FOWLER SLADE is Artistic Director Emeritus of Princeton Pro Musica, which she founded in 1979. She was formerly a member of the choral faculty at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, where she was awarded the Douglass Medal for outstanding service to the Douglass College Community. She was Music Director at All Saints' Church in Princeton and Grace Lutheran Church in Trenton. She has prepared choruses for the New Jersey Symphony, the Opera Orchestra of New York, New York's Concert Royal, the Westfield Symphony, and the Princeton Symphony. A native of Atlanta, Georgia, she holds degrees from Wellesley College and Northwestern University. These days, she spends her time playing the piano and dancing (English country dance and contra dance).
