

Max Brey is a Florida-born baritone who works as a singer, teacher, and organist across New Jersey and NY's Hudson valley. He is the organist and music director at St. John's Reformed Church in Red Hook, NY. As a student at Westminster Choir College and a member of the Philadelphia Symphonic Choir, Max has sung with the New York Philharmonic, Philadelphia Orchestra, and on stages across the US and internationally. At home in Florida, Max's bluegrass and folk groups have performed at the Florida Folk Festival, Suwannee Springfest and other festivals across the southeast. His original music has been featured on the mystery podcast Murder in your Ear. In his free time, Max enjoys minor league baseball and spotting spiders.
